

- www.nyhabitat.com
Tifanie Riley of New York Habitat can help find short-term housing rentals for the workshop. New York Habitat offers housing that ranges from a room for rent within someone's apartment, to private studios, to entire houses that can be rented by several students. They can be rented daily, weekly and even monthly if you decide to extend your stay in New York City. Pricing and availability will vary depending on the neighborhood, exact rental dates and type of accommodation you are seeking. For details contact: Tifanie at tifanie@nyhabitat.com or 646.619.9568 and tell her you are with Stanley Sherman.
- <http://housingnyc.com/html/guide/roommates.html>
This is an official NYC Housing web site that lists places to find: Bed & Breakfasts / Sublets / Roommates
- <http://www.hostels.com/new-york/usa>
This site lists hostels from $15 to $42 a day.
- <http://3e3dorm.com>
They offer a dormitory style residence in Noho offering accommodations to interns, college students, and international scholars, the rate is $250 a week.
- <http://www.ymcanyc.org/ymca-of-greater-new-york/guest-rooms/>
NYC YMCA's, Brooklyn has rates for private rooms for as low as $28 a day and there is no tax.
- <http://roomorama.com/rooms>
This site offers short-term rentals in private homes for rooms at low to high prices.
- <http://www.sublet.com/spider/lecitylist.asp?state=NewYork>
This looks like a membership site with places around the USA, it has some good deals especially if you can stay in Brooklyn or Queens.
- <http://www.sarahomestay.com/pricelist-new-york>
Sara's Homestay is an accommodation provider that specializes in offering private rooms in homes with families, private rooms in apartments with roommates, completely private apartments just for guest(s) and private rooms in residence halls or dormitories.
- <http://www.airbnb.com>
Airbnb connects people who have space to spare with those who are looking for a place to stay. Guests can build real connections with their hosts, gain access to distinctive spaces, and immerse themselves in the culture of their destinations. Whether it's an urban apartment or countryside castle, Airbnb makes it effortless to showcase your space to an audience of millions, and to find the right space at any price point, anywhere.